

TODAY WE BEGIN WORKING DIFFERENTLY

The Delaware Department of Labor Offices will remain open, but we are suspending public access to all of our office buildings until further notice.

Last week Governor Carney declared the State of Emergency. The emergency declaration allows the State of Delaware executive branch agencies to conduct public meetings electronically to prevent unnecessary public gatherings. He then expanded this authorization so that all public bodies could meet electronically. Although we are currently under the State of Emergency all State Offices will remain open.

As new information is released about [COVID-19], this evolving pandemic requires evolving responses. As of today, March 16, 2020, the Delaware Department of Labor will suspend public access to all offices until further notice. We are still open for business and able to serve Delawareans.

Below you will find a list of services and divisions the Delaware Department of Labor provides along with the websites, links, and contact numbers associated with each. Please refer to this list to access departments, services, or processes you may have previously conducted in-person at one of our locations.

If you have any questions please use the contact numbers provided to connect with the specific division or service you have questions for.

We appreciate your patience during this time as we are committed to serving Delawareans.
