About Us

The Delaware Division of Vocational Rehabilitation (DVR) is a public program that helps people with disabilities obtain or retain employment. DVR's commitment is to help people with disabilities increase independence through employment.

Who is Eligible?

An individual is determined eligible for DVR services when they have:

- A physical, mental, or cognitive disability that interferes with the ability to obtain or maintain employment

Are There Costs Involved For Services?

Most services through DVR are offered at no cost.

If you are responsible for the partial payment of any service, your counselor will work with you to develop a plan that best suits your financial situation.

Other Service Programs

DVR offers several programs to support individuals in the following areas:

- Pre-Employment Transition Services
- School to Work Transition Services
- Supported Employment services for individuals with developmental disabilities
